COURSE CONTENT

Outcomes and Objectives:

The students will be able to:

1. Read, analyze and interpret works of literature written in Great Britain, from Old English texts through the Eighteenth Century.
2. Develop several methodologies for reading and interpreting these texts, differentiate among the premises and the modes of arguing that each pursues, and of the issues connected with a choice of one perspective versus another.
3. Examine the critical and historical principles behind the construction of literary and cultural history including the terminology of literary periods, controversies concerning the establishment of distinctions between periods, and general significances attached to various views taken of the transitions between periods.
4. Examine the history of the English language and the development of particular forms, genres, and conventions (i.e. the sonnet, the mystery play, the caesura).
5. Identify the literary and cultural inheritance drawn from this period of British literature and apply this knowledge to other, later forms of literature.
6. Study and apply elementary literary research methodology.
7. Evaluate the uses of secondary material in the study of literary texts.
8. Examine the art, sociology, history, economics, and daily life of the people of each period under study, and evaluate their effect on the literature of the time.
9. Analyze the period under study such continuing concerns as the shifting role of the poet, the development of literary theory, and the changing readership.
