Outcomes and Objectives:

Upon completion of this course, the student will be able to:

1. Discuss the following perspectives when explaining human sexuality: sociological, evolutionary, mass media, gender-role legacy, and cross-cultural.
2. Describe and apply with examples the various research methods used to study sexual behavior; include case studies, naturalistic and laboratory observations, correlational studies, surveys and tests, and the experimental method.
3. Identify and explain the functions of the female and male internal and external sexual organs and structures and genital health concerns.
4. Demonstrate how chromosomal and hormonal processes and social-learning factors influence gender role and gender identity.
5. Compare and contrast the males' and females' sexual arousal and responses; include the roles of the brain, the senses, aphrodisiacs and the aging process.
6. Explain how Kaplan's model differs from Masters and Johnson's model of describing sexual arousal.
7. Describe Sternberg's Theory of Love and Lee's Styles of Loving and list the ingredients of a lasting love relationship.
8. Distinguish among the different sexual behaviors: erotic dreams and - fantasies, self-pleasuring techniques, kissing and touching, and sexual positions.

9. Define sexual orientation and describe the social ramifications associated with each type, including prejudice, privilege, law, psychological and medical risk factors, and statistical data on relational issues.
 10. Compare and contrast advantages and disadvantages of the male and female contraceptive devices, with emphasis on oral contraceptives, barrier apparatus, intrauterine devices, and sterilization.
 11. Compare and contrast the various medical, mechanical and surgical procedures for the treatment of sexual dysfunctions.
 12. Describe different types of sexual transmitted infections.
 13. Discuss the evolutionary, social learning, and cultural factors that contribute to aggressive behaviors; distinguish the difference between physical, sexual and emotional abuse; and describe sexual harassment, its effects, and ways of coping.
