COURSE CONTENT

Outcomes and Objectives:

Upon completion of this course, the students will be able to:

1. Apply expanded perceptual acuity through rendering and design skills.
2. Research the social, historical, political, artistic, and theatrical background of a script.
3. Collaborate effectively with others in achieving a common goal, demonstrating communication skills, ethical practices, and responsibility to others.
4. Demonstrate time management, commitment, budgetary planning, and follow-through skills as they apply to the design process.
5. Analyze a work of dramatic literature, including the genre, theme and style, and its application to design elements.
6. Synthesize script analysis, design elements, research results, and collaborative feedback into a cohesive design.
7. Apply a process for self critique and problem solving.
8. Analyze potential career paths in one or more specific fields of theatrical design, including identifying further education and training and applying job search techniques.
9. Demonstrate skills in resume and cover letter writing, portfolio preparation and presentation, and interviewing techniques.

Repeating students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate an expanded and deeper aesthetic and analytic understanding of script and research for specific design assignments.
2. Utilize more professional practices and processes of theatrical design including

- conceptualization, collaboration, communication, and visual presentation.
3. Demonstrate a higher level of skill in resume preparation, portfolio preparation, and interview techniques.

2. Apply the topics and scopes above to different plays each semester

Assignment:

The following assignments will be performed in conjunction with hypothetical and/or realized projects. Realized projects for SRJC productions are assigned through successful application to the Theatre Arts Department Chair (normally at the end of the previous spring semester). Other off-campus project proposals must have prior approval from the instructor.

As a 2-hour lecture course, students will complete 4 hours of homework per week relating to the assignments listed below. In addition, they will complete 4 DHR hours per week focusing on hands-on experience specifically related to their design field of choice.

Assignments will include:

1. Create two or more design projects. Each must be from a different play and one must incorporate non-realistic elements. As part of these projects the student will:
 - A. Read two plays and complete two written script analyses (one per project)
 - B. Complete renderings and/or other communication tools (such as models, CDs, floorplans, etc.)
 - C. One design process notebook (maintained for full semester)
2. One Vision Statement (500-word essay on one of the two design projects)
3. One budget exercise
4. One cover letter and resume
5. Two interviews (one job interview simulation; one feedback interview)
6. Assemble and present an individual design portfolio
7. Complete 4 DHR hours per week related to the design projects, maintain a log of hours in the design process notebook. (At least 20 DHR hours should be hands-on experience, preferably working on the construction and/or preparation of elements for an actual production.)

8. Maintain standards of professionalism (includes timely attendance at all classes, meetings and rehearsals relating to the course/projects, respectful communication, adaptability to practical and stylistic limitations, and meeting deadlines)

This course may also include attendance at Theatre Arts productions, rehearsals, production meetings, and a gallery display for competition.

Repeating students will:

1. Develop higher proficiency in each of the topics listed above
2. Apply the above topics to different plays each semester
