1. Critically read, analyze, and interpret works in the British literary tradition from the late Eighteenth Century to the present.
2. Demonstrate understanding of the historical and cultural contexts of this literature.
3. Understand and apply a range of historic and contemporary critical approaches to this literature.

Objectives:

Students will be able to:

1. Read, analyze and interpret works of literature written in Great Britain from the late Eighteenth Century to the present.
2. Develop several methodologies for reading and interpreting texts, differentiating among the premises and the modes of arguing that each pursues and of the issues connected with a choice of one perspective versus another.
3. Examine the critical and historical principles behind the construction of literary and cultural history, including the terminology of literary periods, controversies concerning the establishment of distinctions among periods, and general significances attached to various views taken of the transitions among periods.
4. Examine the development of particular forms, genres, conventions, and philosophies (e.g., the novel, the lyric, existentialism).
5. Analyze the literary and cultural inheritance drawn from this period of British literature.
6. Study and apply elementary literary research methodology.
7. Evaluate the uses of secondary and critical material in the study of literary texts.
8. Examine the art, sociology, history, economics and daily life of the people of the period under study and evaluate their effect on the literature of the time.
9. Analyze the period under study with regard to the shifting role of the poet or writer, the development of literary theory, and the changing readership.
