COURSE CONTENT

Student Learning Outcomes:

At the conclusion of this course, the student should be able to:

1. Since the purpose of the course is to afford the student an opportunity to engage in intensive study of a particular topic not covered in-depth in other English courses, the SLOs will vary according to the project proposal.

Objectives:

At the conclusion of this course, the student should be able to:

- 1. Discuss intelligently--orally and in writing--the topic of the independent study, citing specific evidence from literary, linguistic or cultural history, and comparing/contrasting major and minor trends.
- 2. Identify the relative significance of the topic to the broad evolution of literary or linguistic theory.
- 3. Demonstrate factual knowledge on each of the sub-topics of the paper or project.
- 4. Demonstrate knowledge of academic library (or other) resources (e.g. bibliographies, editions, dictionaries, biographies, histories) and MLA format for citing research.
- 5. Repeating students may choose different topics or emphasis depending on approval of the project.

Topics and Scope:

Contents will vary with the student, but generally will capitalize on a student's special interests and abilities. In no case will a student be allowed to undertake a topic that duplicates any other regular course offering (e.g. "Women in Lit.").

Repeating students may choose different topics of emphases depending on approval of the project.

Assignment:

Assignments for English 49 will vary with the student and the topic, but generally will involve activities common in other English courses (e.g. reading, note-taking, library research, summarizing, drafting, revision, essay writing, oral presentation, essay exams).

Methods of Evaluation/Basis of Grade:

Writing: Assessment tools that demonstrate writing skills and/or require students to select, organize and explain ideas in writing.
