COURSE CONTENT

Outcomes and Objectives:

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Identify pre and post modern culture zones or areas geographically.
2. Map and describe variations in cultural institutions in globalizing culture areas of the world (examples: trends in religion, politics, the family, economics, women's roles, slavery, terrorism, medicine, and the like.)
3. Apply and critique popular theories of global culture in varying culture areas.
4. Evaluate the pace or future of globalization on specific culture areas.
5. Theorize about the accuracy and applicability of global culture studies on the social problems of the future.

Topics and Scope:

1. The geographical identification of major and minor culture zones over recent decades and centuries (Introduction to Culture Area Map work.)
2. Explanation of the major cultural institutions that are subject to globalization forces (politics, economics, religion, family, medicine, and the like.)
3. Charting and analysis of global culture change to date (using both

- geographical boundaries and cultural institutions as indicators.)
4. Review of popular and academic news sources (newspapers, broadcast news, internet, and the like) as indicators of global culture change or global issues needing further study.
  5. Summary evaluation of common predictions and predictors regarding regionalized vs globalized cultures around the world today.
  6. Note: The specific preference for examples from a given culture area (ex: sub Saharan Africa, arctic zones, or High Andes) or cultural institution (examples: religion, politics, economics, women's roles, etc.) will be set by the expertise of the instructor. However, all examples will be linked to a global perspective in the overview of the course.
