COURSE CONTENT

Student Learning Outcomes:

At the conclusion of this course, the student should be able to:

1. Describe and apply reading strategies and rhetorical patterns of organization for level appropriate materials.
2. Comprehend, infer, interpret, and analyze vocational and academic texts.
3. Use the writing process to: narrow a topic suitable for an essay of a prescribed length; formulate and develop a thesis with details, examples, and reasons; and express ideas in clear and grammatical sentences and logical paragraphs.
4. Demonstrate proficiency in reading comprehension through writing summaries, and responses, short essays, and short research assignments.
5. Demonstrate proficiency in learning practices that foster literacy skills and promote student success.
6. Access, select, and evaluate research materials, recognize the principles of academic integrity, and use research materials in written assignments.

Objectives:

Using general education and career-technical readings of various lengths and increasing complexity, such as short articles, chapters from textbooks, short stories, novels, full-length works of nonfiction, and/or other materials, students will:

EFFECTIVE LEARNING PRACTICES

1. Participate in college classes effectively.
2. Demonstrate effective academic habits.
3. Find and use campus and community resources that foster literacy skills and student success.

READING

1. Survey texts for and identify format and support features (e.g. font sizes, color, bold or italic print, title and subtitles, visuals, table of content, glossary, index) and functions of those features.
2. Survey texts to determine and articulate the purpose of format features and textual structure.
3. Use format feature to make connections between text and prior knowledge (schema activation).
4. Articulate a specific goal (answering questions, clarifying an issue, confirming a prediction) for reading a text.
5. Evaluate and apply best method(s) for reviewing and retaining reading material (annotation, reflecting, summarizing).
6. Recognize the main idea in titles, introductions, and conclusions.
7. Identify topics, main ideas, and supporting details in paragraphs and longer readings.
8. Distinguish general abstractions from specific concrete details.
9. Outline and/or summarize short articles, chapters in textbooks and novels, short stories, lecture presentations, complete works of nonfiction, or videos.
10. Identify common organizational patterns in reading materials.
11. Distinguish opinions from facts.
12. Synthesize meaning by drawing inferences and conclusions.
13. Identify unfamiliar vocabulary through the use of context clues and word analysis.
14. Access information from at least three kinds of library or other information sources and evaluate it according to specific criteria.

WRITING:

Through short essays, responses to readings, reports, job-related writings, and other kinds of written assignments of various lengths and increasing complexity, students will:

1. Write a minimum of 4,000 words of unedited prose.
2. Use pre-writing techniques to generate topics and explore ideas.
3. Identify and explain sentence elements, parts of speech, phrases, clauses, and the logical relationships between and among these elements.
4. Write clear, complete sentences.
5. Formulate clear topic sentences and develop them in unified, coherent paragraphs.
6. Write at least four to five 300 to 500-word revised and edited essays or other academic or job-related writings with clear thesis statements and adequate detail.
7. Write at least five formal summaries and responses for assigned reading.
8. Proofread for spelling, grammar, and mechanics.
9. Write a short report or annotated bibliography documented in MLA style.
